The original station at Oldbury & Langley Green was opened just to the west of the existing station in 1867. On 1 March 1885, the current station opened at the junction with a new branch line to Oldbury and was named Langley Green. The passenger service on the branch only lasted 30 years, being withdrawn on 3 March 1915.

The station was renamed to Langley Green & Rood End in 1904, and was renamed again in 1936 to Oldbury & Langley Green. It took its current name in 1968.
